BUSINESS AND THE PERSONNERS.

New York Press.—There is one point in a statement recently made by Senator James Tanner, on the subject of pensions, which is well worth considering by business men throughout the United States, and that is the amount of money the country loses in seeing the money of the pensioners in active circulation. The pension money, as Mr. Tanner shows, is much more generally and widely distributed than many suppose. In the South, for instance, the impression is prevalent that the Southern states are taxed for the benefit of Northern pensioners. It would be no injustice if such were the fact, yet the figures tell a different story. Texas, according to Corporal Tanner, paid him $906,375 of internal revenue taxes and received in pensions $905,390. South Carolina paid $71,816 in pensions. Tennessee, contributed $1,275,892 and drew out in pensions $8,454,508. Alabama's revenue taxes were $106,771; her pension receipts were $490,729. Arkansas paid $90,718 $66 revenue taxes and received in pensions $905,390. West Virginia's revenue tax was $907,388.36 and the state was paid in pensions $2,158,700.12. Louisiana and Mississippi together paid $734,832 and received $847,592 in pensions. Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia paid $3,288,878.77 in internal revenue taxes and children in pensions $4,290,990.13.

A good share of this money goes, no doubt, to veterans of the Mexican War, but whatever grounds on which pensioners are here granted, it is clear that, on a comparison between pension money and federal taxes, the South is the gainer. It should be needless to indicate the amount of good done, for instance, in such a state as South Carolina, by the Index, in the course of a year, of nearly $900,000 in pension money. The pensioners are nearly all more or less dependent on the income thus received. They expect the money for the necessities of life at the grocery, the clothing store, the hardware store and other places of trade. They help to fill the till of the retail dealer, and he in turn is enabled to increase his prices. The pensioners are not paid to the pensioners alone, but to the whole people, the pensioners being merely agents for putting the millions in circulation. This applies not to the South alone but to all the country. Every hamlet in the land feels the quickening pulse of pension day, and every dealer in the land would be more or less affected should the pension money be diverted to a different use.

The plan of the Mugwump Democracy is well understood to be to cut down pensions, in order to cut down the duty on foreign imports. The plan of the South, however, is to give the veterans of America to be diverted, according to the Mugwump scheme, into the pockets of British and other foreign manufacturers. The foreign manufacturers do not, so far as The Press has reason to believe, patronize American markets, and they would not be likely to put into circulation in this country the money which, according to the Mugwump programme, they would be enabled to save on exports to this country. They would, in all probability, expend their profits in London and Paris and other foreign centers, and thereby encourage foreign trade, while by their increased exports to the United States they would proportionately discourage American industries.

We doubt not that there are plenty of people in the South who would not hesitate to see the traders and business men of their own states deprived of a large and valuable source of income and profit if at the same time they could see the veterans of the Union armies reduced to beg for bread; for, if remembered, every blow at the Union pension is a blow to Mexican pensions, and both systems will stand or fall together. But it is incredible that the North, the capitol of the country, in proportion to its population, is so blind to their own and the public interests as to wish to see the pension roll successfully assassinated for the benefit of foreign and the injury of American industries. The people who are continually clamoring for an increase and a more extensive distribution of the circulating medium should therefore remember that no agency could be more effective for that purpose than the pension system.

TO A FAIR DAISY.

When in autumn days long died
Talked of love to you,
'Twas you I thought of, my fair,

And sometimes now you do.

And when my knees pressed your lips,
Around my neck you'd twine,

With a kiss, a smile, a finger-tips

All I claim is mine.

Oh, can it be that love grows cold
As you grow older, dear?

And the story goes cold

That was so new last year?

Not I! Not thin! The other men
Are not so good as you!

For you were twenty when then,

But now you're twenty-four.

A Female Prisoner Tried to Choke Herself to Death.

Ross Marz, who has figured in the Police Court on divers occasions, was arrested yesterday afternoon for drunkenness and was sent to the State Penitentiary.

About 6 o'clock last night Justice Kirk was started to an unusual sound, and on going to investigate found Ross on the floor of her cell and a handkerchief tied tightly around her neck that she was unable to breathe.

With the assistance of another prisoner (the handkerchief was removed) and Ross was all right again except for liquor.

The unfortunate woman had undoubtedly made an attempt on her life, but for the timely help would have been successful, as in her drunken condition she would have soon choked to death.

She had only been released from the State Penitentiary on Thursday afternoon, but could not keep out of trouble.

LETTER-CARRIERS'

Acknowledgment for Car-Fare so as to Reduce Delivery Costs Next Year.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The post office department is now seriously considering the possibility of reducing during the next fiscal year, the rapidly growing allowances of car-fare for letter-carriers in the field districts. The department estimates a small amount amounts to a great deal where allowances are made to all the free delivery towns in the country, the allowance for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1894, being $16,000. The costs heavily into the appropriation for free delivery service and is constantly increasing. In consequence the department will endeavor to secure legislative action to the end of a section of congress relating to the rule of the free delivery division by compelling the car lines of all carriers in uniform free. This is now done in a number of cities, the carriers and policemen being carried on the telephone lines. The lines when unjoined. These cities are growing less every year, however, and the department officials are convinced that the street car corporations throughout the country are forming a trust to keep to the public transportation as much as possible. In many towns where half rates to carriers were allowed, full rates are being charged and the estimated increase for the next fiscal year in expenditures is seriously alarming.

MISS POLLARD.

Why She Lost Her Position in the Interior Department.

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The morning papers announced the engagement of Representative W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, to Miss Madeline Brookbridge Pollard, of the same state. Miss Pollard was at one time a maid in the service of General Sherman, at her place by a remark made at the time of Gen. Sherman's death. The day the general died the flags on the public buildings were placed at half mast and Miss Pollard, who was in the other room, noted the old army style flag in the breeze and exclaimed: "Now we will have a holiday." When she was told that they flew for Gen. Sherman and that there would be no holiday, she exclaimed: "Gen. Sherman! Oh now the little ones are not being made to fly first to receive him." This remark caused much indignation among the widows and children of old soldiers, and the G. A. R. took it up and carried the case to the president, and Miss Pollard was finally requested to resign, which she did.
